Pollution can enter stormwater grates.

Manholes are used for maintenance and inspection of stormwater drains.

Then it flows through stormwater pipes.

Comes out at the closest wastewater treatment plant.

In volcanic rocks, stormwater soaks into aquifers used for water supply. These can be contaminated by pollutants soaking into the ground.

And eventually to the sea.